2027 Privacy Collection Notice

This notice explains how Australian Wearable Art Festival Pty Ltd (AWAF) collects and handles the personal information and files provided through the AWAF 2027 entry and finalist processes.

What AWAF collects and why

AWAF collects the personal information and files you provide in the entry form and, if selected, during the finalist process. AWAF uses this information to assess and administer your entry, process your payment, contact you about your entry and manage your participation in AWAF 2027. This includes arranging any accessibility or practical support you request.

Storage

Your entry information may be stored in AWAF's website, Google Workspace, Google Sheets, payment and file-storage systems.

Access and sharing

Relevant information may be accessed by AWAF directors and authorised team members, the Selection Panel and service providers where needed to assess or administer your entry.

Accessibility and support information

Accessibility or support information will be used only to discuss or arrange support. It will not form part of the selection or judging material and should not be included in information provided to the Selection Panel.

Marketing

AWAF will not use your contact details for unrelated marketing without your separate permission.

Questions, access and correction

To ask a question about your information, or request access to or correction of your information, contact wendy@australianwearableart.com.au.
